Red Wines

2012 Felsina Chianti Classico Riserva Rancia Tuscany $61.99/$51.39/$46.25

“A ripe, powerful wine, it offers a level of finesse that balances some of the more overt intensity of the year. This beautifully delineated Rancia opens up in the glass. Because of its mid-weight structure, I expect the 2012 will give up its charms relatively early around age 15-20. Is a wine built on compelling overall harmony.” - Vinous/Antonio Galloni, 94+ points. New vintage.

2014 Evening Land Vineyards Pinot Noir Seven Springs Vineyard Eola-Amity Hills $64.99/$42.99/$38.69

“Comes from our oldest own-rooted blocks of Pinot Noir. Planted in 1984, these Pommard and Wädenswil clones thrive in iron-rich, volcanic Jory soils. Gentle punch downs were employed throughout the fermentation to encourage a soft extraction of tannins and the wine was aged in 30% new French oak for 16 months. Bottled without fining or filtering.”

–Winemaker notes. New vintage.

2013 Arianna Occhipinti Siccagno Rosso Nero d’Avola Sicily $39.99/$35.49/$31.94

“Our No. 1 bottle was not a surprise: the 2011 Siccagno from Arianna Occhipinti, a producer whose wines have always been among our favorites. In contrast to many of the wines in the tasting, this one was understated and lightly tannic, and the flavors emphasized the floral-mineral end of the spectrum rather than the sweetly fruity.” –New York Times, 1/08/15. New vintage.

2014 Brick House Gamay Noir Ribbon Ridge Oregon $35.99/$29.89/$26.90

“Brick House was one of the first to plant Gamay Noir in the Willamette Valley, and may well be the state’s leading producer in terms of quantity. This is loaded with chunky cherry fruit, a penetrating style that simply brings a grin with every sip. Aromatics of root beer, saffras and hard cherry candy add to the complexity. Editors’ Choice.”

–Paul Gregutt, 91 points. New vintage.

2015 Capitain-Gagnerot Bourgogne Rouge $27.99/$24.29/$21.86

One of the first 2015 Burgundies from this classic vintage to arrive. Delicate and brilliant crimson color. It has a bold aroma of cherry fruit and a hint of kirsch. 2014 Here Be Dragon Tormentoso Pinotage Agter-Paarl South Africa $15.99/$12.19/$10.97

"A delicious, full-bodied Pinotage with typical aromas of black cherries. The soft, rich tannins and plum flavors on the palate are enhanced by the addition of a little Syrah. We try to emphasize the softer, prettier side of Pinotage by working carefully in the cellar to manage the tannins and preserve the attractive berry flavors and hints of floral aromas."
